Introduction

This document contains publication by the African Population and Health Research Center (APHRC) researchers, the Consortium for Advanced Research Training in Africa (CARTA) graduate students, and African Doctoral Dissertation Research Fellowship (ADDRF) graduate students. The publications list constitutes of peer reviewed journal articles, policy and briefing papers, working papers and technical reports based on research work conducted by APHRC researchers and graduate students supported through the Center.

APHRC is a leading pan-African research institution headquartered in Nairobi, Kenya, that conducts high quality policy-relevant research on population, health, education, urbanization and related development issues across Africa. APHRC actively engages policymakers and other key stakeholders to achieve measurable policy impacts and ensure decision making across the continent is informed by rigorous evidence-based research. The Center is committed to developing the next generation of globally competitive African scholars and leads by example through numerous research capacity strengthening initiatives and strong partnerships with top African universities and research institutions. Over the last decade, APHRC has contributed to a better Africa through quality research, and results-based strategic communications and policy engagement.

CARTA is a capacity strengthening program at APHRC jointly led by the APHRC, Kenya, and the University of Witwatersrand (Wits), South Africa. CARTA (www.cartAfrica.org) provides doctoral and post-doctoral research fellowships to qualified candidates. Most of its students are junior academics from nine universities in East, South and West Africa. The vision of CARTA is to be the catalyst for the emergence of a vibrant African academy able to lead world-class multidisciplinary research that makes a positive impact on population and public health. The first cohort of CARTA students was admitted in 2011. The CARTA students have published over 400 peer reviewed journal articles.

ADDRF launched in 2008, is a doctoral fellowship which responds to the growing need of strengthening the quality of research training in African universities. The ADDRF Program has focused on the provision of doctoral fellowships to students working on governance, equity, health or population-related issues in Africa. To date, the ADDRF graduate students have published over 200 peer reviewed journal articles.
