ABSTRACT

Scientific abstract

Background: Acute malnutrition in infants and children less than 5 years is persistent in the arid and semi-arid lands (ASALs) of East Africa and the Sahel region despite years of investment. In the ASALs of Kenya, the situation is exacerbated by deep-rooted poverty and unequal access to basic services, sustained community conflicts, migration, poor seasonal rainfall/drought and other shocks. Nutrition specific and nutrition sensitive national and county level programs have either not been developed or not implemented effectively.

Objectives: To understand and map immediate, underlying, basic and systemic drivers of acute malnutrition for the development of overarching as well as micro-solutions for the sustainable reduction of persistent acute malnutrition (PAM) and inform pilot studies and Phase 2 (second phase of USAID Nawiri project implementation) activities in Turkana and Samburu Counties.

Methods: This study is a longitudinal mixed-methods observational cohort study of children less than 3 years and their mothers and/or caregivers in Samburu and Turkana Counties. Both quantitative and qualitative methods were utilized in the data collection processes. Data collection comenced in January 2021. Data analysis, learning and adapting was also ongoing so that results could inform pilots, theory of change (ToC) review and Phase 2 activities throughout the study.

Study outcomes: To develop new interventions, and to adapt and contextualize existing interventions to prevent global acute malnutrition (GAM); strengthen social and behavior change (SBC) strategies around maternal, infant and young child nutrition (MIYCN), water and sanitation (WASH), community health systems, gender dynamics, livelihoods and resilience, and to inform improvements of the current nutrition surveillance system.

Study duration: 24 months.

Summary budget: Total budget is KSH 140,400,000.00.

Lay summary:

The nutritional status of mothers and young children in Kenya's ASALs are strongly affected by deep-rooted poverty and unequal access to basic services, sustained community conflict, migration, poor seasonal rainfall/drought and other shocks. Inadequate women empowerment and limited control over household resources, high workload, domestic violence, insufficient household food security, inadequate social support, inadequate health services and an unhealthy environment, as well as inadequate dietary intake and high disease burden, are among other factors that contribute to poor maternal infant and young child feeding practice in these areas. Consequently, more than one in ten reproductive age women and 2-3 in ten young children in Turkana and in Samburu are undernourished. As such, this study aims to provide evidence for the

KENYA - Examining the Complex Dynamics Influencing Persistent Acute Malnutrition in Turkana and Samburu Counties - A Longitudinal Mixed Methods Study to Support Community Driven Activity Design (USAID Nawiri Wave IV), NAWIRI WAVE IV appropriate policy and program design to improve the nutritional status of children and their mothers living in the two counties.

UNITS OF ANALYSIS

The unit of analysis are the sampled Households in Turkana and Samburu Counties who have children under 6 years

Scope

NOTES

The scope of USAID Nawiri Longitudinal study includes:

-HOUSEHOLD: Household demographics, Household Food insecurity coping strategies, water, hygiene and sanitation(WASH), Household shocks experienced, Social safety nets and economic safety guards, Household food insecurity experience scale(FIES), Interventions and services received by households,

- MOTHERS/CAREGIVERS: Mothers/caregivers information, Pregnancy and antenatal care, Family planning, Women's minimum dietary diversity, Gender, women empowerment, violence and community conflict, Psychological wellbeing,

- CHILD: Infant and young child feeding practices, Supplementation and consumption of iron-rich or iron-fortified foods, Caregiving practices, Food safety, hygiene and sanitation practices, Child immunization, health and health-seeking practices, Acute Malnutrition screening, Anthropometric measurements,

Sampling

Sampling Procedure

SAMBURU

The study sample was population-based, with stratification by sub-counties grouped into three survey zones (Central, North, and East) reflecting administrative sub-counties used in the Samburu Standardized Monitoring and Assessment of Relief and Transitions (SMART) Surveys.

The study used mixed-method techniques with quantitative and qualitative data collection. The quantitative component included a household survey and a caregiver survey and covered 699 households. The qualitative data yielded rich and in-depth insights that will be triangulated with the quantitative survey findings in a companion report.

The baseline data collection was carried out in June and July 2021 following a full household listing operation in the county to establish the sampling frame of households with children under 3 years. Wave 2 data collection was carried out in November-December 2021, Wave 3 in March-April 2022, Wave 4 in September-October 2022 and Wave 5 in March-April 2023. Wave 6 data collection is will be carried out in August-September 2023.

TURKANA

The study sample was population-based, with stratification by sub-counties grouped into four survey zones (Central, North, West, and South) reflecting administrative sub-counties used in the Turkana SMART Surveys.

The study used mixed-method techniques with quantitative and qualitative data collection. The quantitative component included a household survey and a caregiver survey and covered 1,211 households. The qualitative data yielded rich and in-depth insights that will be triangulated with the quantitative survey findings in a companion report.

The baseline data collection was carried out in May and June 2021 following a full household listing operation in the county to establish the sampling frame of households with children under 3 years. Anthropometric data were collected from all under-5 children in the sampled households. Wave 2 data collection was carried out in October-November 2021, Wave 3 in March-April 2022, Wave 4 in September-October 2022 and Wave 5 in March-April 2023. Wave 6 data collection will be in August-September 2023.

Deviations from Sample Design

During Wave 4 of data collection, there was no deviation from the sample design. All the sampled households were accessed both in Turkana and Samburu

Response Rate

TURKANA

94.7% response rate

SAMBURU

93.7% response rate

Weighting

Sample weights were calculated for each of the data files. We used the MEASURE Demographic and Health Survey (DHS) program document as a guide to calculate sampling weights for both households and mothers or caregivers. We first

KENYA - Examining the Complex Dynamics Influencing Persistent Acute Malnutrition in Turkana and Samburu Counties - A Longitudinal Mixed Methods Study to Support Community Driven Activity Design (USAID Nawiri Wave IV), NAWIRI WAVE IV computed the design weight of a sampling unit (household or mother/caregiver), defined as the inverse of the overall probability with which the sampling unit was selected in the sample. The final sampling weight of a sampling unit was derived from the computed design weight correcting for nonresponse.

Questionnaires

Overview

In Wave 4, one questionnaire with three different sections (Household section, Mother/caregiver section and Child section) was administered in each sampled household to Mother/caregiver

Household section collected various information on Household demographics, Household Food insecurity coping strategies, water, hygiene and sanitation (WASH), Household shocks experienced, Social safety nets and economic safety guards, Household food insecurity experience scale (FIES), Interventions and services received by households,

Mother/caregiver section included, Mothers/caregivers information, Pregnancy and antenatal care, Family planning, Women's minimum dietary diversity, Gender, women empowerment, violence and community conflict, Psychological wellbeing.

Child section includes Infant and young child feeding practices, Supplementation and consumption of iron-rich or iron-fortified foods, Caregiving practices, Food safety, hygiene and sanitation practices, Child immunization, health and health-seeking practices, Acute Malnutrition screening, Anthropometric measurements.

The questionnaire is provided as external sources

Supervision

Field operations were supervised through two layers: a day-to-day supervision by team leaders, and a weekly review of activities and data quality by the data coordination team including the two research officers assigned to each of the counties, the data analyst, the software programmer, and the post-doctoral research scientist. A weekly report on issues arising from the field and discrepancies observed in data would be shared with the research team, including the co-principal investigators and co-investigators who advised on necessary actions to be taken.

Field workers were supervised by carefully trained supervisors; with a ratio of five field workers per supervisor. Supervisors reported to the field coordinator. During fieldwork, data quality was enhanced through regular spot checks and sit-ins on approximately 5-10% of each field interviewer's daily work to verify the authenticity of data collected.

The field coordinator certified the data quality through the editing of the same before they were transferred to the database. Once the data collection is completed, all inconsistencies were resolved prior to data analysis.

An automated routine to check on the data completeness, correctness and consistency was run on 100% of the collected data. A discrepancy report was then generated to enable resolution of any inconsistencies or errors in the data with the responsible interviewer.

Data Processing

Data Editing

Data quality monitoring processes and checks were implemented throughout the data collection process, during the time of developing the data collection tools (through built-in quality control in the tablet-based platform), during training of fieldworkers, in real time during data collection (routine monitoring by the research team and periodic cross-checks against the protocols), and during the data cleaning process. During fieldwork, data quality was enhanced through regular spot checks and sit-ins by supervisors to verify the authenticity of data collected. Data were then reviewed and certified by the field coordinator before they were transferred to the server.

The quantitative data were collected using SurveyCTO, a survey platform for electronic data collection that has in-built skips and quality checks. Using this software increased efficiency and reduced the time needed for cleaning the data. In addition, the platform supported offline data capturing for regions with slow or no internet connectivity and data transmission when the internet became available. Fieldwork was conducted by trained fieldworkers using digital tablets with the questionnaire loaded in SurveyCTO. The questionnaire included the following modules: (1) identification and tracking, (2) demographics and household composition, (3) anthropometry of children <5 years and mothers, (4) socioeconomics, (5) household food security, (6) WASH, (7) health-seeking behavior, (8) MIYCN, (9) shock experience/exposure, and (10) shock preparedness and response. Data were uploaded from the tablets onto a secure African Population and Health Research Center (APHRC) server after each day of data collection. Data were synchronized automatically to a server when the tablet was in a location with network coverage. The uploaded data were then checked for quality daily by a data manager and a team dedicated to coordinate field procedures and at the APHRC head office in Nairobi.

Data Appraisal

Estimates of Sampling Error

Estimates from a sample survey are affected by two types of errors: 1) non-sampling errors and 2) sampling errors. Non-sampling errors are the results of mistakes made in the implementation of data collection and data processing. Numerous efforts were made during the implementation of the 2005-2006 MICS to minimize this type of error, however, non-sampling errors are impossible to avoid and difficult to evaluate statistically. If the sample of respondents had been a simple random sample, it would have been possible to use straightforward formulae for calculating sampling errors. However, the 2005-2006 MICS sample is the result of a multi-stage stratified design and consequently needs to use more complex formulae. The STATA complex samples module has been used to calculate sampling errors for the 2005-2006 MICS. Sampling errors have been calculated for a select set of statistics (all of which are proportions due to the limitations of the Taylor linearization method) for the national sample, urban and rural areas, and for each of the five regions. For each statistic, the estimate, its standard error, the coefficient of variation (or relative error -- the ratio between the standard error and the estimate), the design effect, and the square root design effect (DEFT -- the ratio between the standard error using the given sample design and the standard error that would result if a simple random sample had been used), as well as the 95 percent confidence intervals (+/-2 standard errors).
